What to look for

The brief covers a narrow, specialised problem, so the firm matters. Prioritise:

- Saudi-qualified, with a real copyright and trademark practice (not only patents).
- Current on the 2026 Copyright Law — it was published in February 2026 and is not yet in force, so the firm must be actively tracking it and SAIP's implementing regulations.
- Comfortable giving a written opinion (some IP shops mainly do filing/prosecution work and are less suited to an advisory opinion).
- Able to quote a fixed fee — important for a solo founder.
- No conflict — the firm should not act for GACA or related government bodies on matters that would conflict. Ask this directly.
- A bonus: familiarity with AI / technology matters, given the Article-26 AI exception in question 1(g).

Tier 1 — Saudi full-service firms with a strong IP practice

AlGhazzawi & Partners (Ghazzawi Law Firm) — `ghazzawilawfirm.com` One of the longest-established Saudi firms, with offices in Riyadh, Jeddah and Dammam and a dedicated IP practice. Notably, AlGhazzawi & Partners co-authored the leading published analysis of the 2026 Copyright Law with Gowling WLG — a strong signal they are current on exactly the law in question 1. A good first call.

Hammad & Al-Mehdar (HMCO) — hmco.com.sa Established Saudi firm with an IP and technology focus and published commentary on the new IP regime. Likely comfortable with both the copyright and the AI-exception angles.

Tier 2 — Dedicated Saudi IP firms (filing + advisory)

Kadasa Intellectual Property — kadasa.com.sa One of the best-known dedicated IP firms in the Kingdom, handling copyright and trademark work. Strong for the trademark question (P0-2); confirm they will also give a written copyright opinion.

Abu-Ghazaleh Intellectual Property (AGIP) — agip.com Large regional IP firm with a Riyadh office and very high trademark volume across the Middle East. Efficient and well-resourced for the P0-2 trademark/registrability question; confirm advisory (opinion) capability for P0-1.

Al-Otaishan Intellectual Property & Technology (AIP&T) Saudi IP firm with a substantial trademark and design prosecution record and a stated technology focus — the technology angle may suit question 1(g) on the AI exception.

Almazroua Intellectual Property — almazroua-ip.com Saudi IP firm publishing on the Law of Trademarks and its implementing regulations — relevant to the P0-2 registrability analysis.

Tier 3 — International firms with Riyadh IP/AI practices

These will be the most expensive option, but they are deepest on the brand-new 2026 law and the AI exception. Worth a quote if budget allows, or for a second opinion.

Gowling WLG (Riyadh) — gowlingwlg.com Published the most detailed practitioner analysis of the 2026 Copyright Law (with AlGhazzawi & Partners); has a Riyadh-based IP team. Strong on both the copyright and AI angles.

A&O Shearman and Reed Smith — both have published on the new Copyright Law and have Middle East IP capability. Bird & Bird maintains an AI regulatory tracker for Saudi Arabia and is a good fit for the AI-exception question specifically.

How to engage

1. Shortlist 2–3 from Tier 1 / Tier 2 (a Saudi firm is likely the most cost-effective for a focused opinion; add one Tier 3 firm only if you want a higher-cost second opinion).
2. Send a short intro email plus the lawyer-brief.md (consider converting it to PDF first — see the note below).
3. Ask each firm, up front, for: a fixed-fee quote for the written opinion, an estimated turnaround time, and a conflict check (do they act for GACA?).

4. Confirm the lawyer who would handle it is Saudi-qualified and current on the 2026 Copyright Law and SAIP practice.
5. Compare quotes and pick. Keep the engagement scoped to the two questions in the brief to control cost.

Suggested intro line: "I'm the founder of an educational Saudi aviation platform about to launch. I need a written opinion on two IP questions — whether we may rehost official GACA regulations, and whether we can use the name 'Fly GACA'. A full brief is attached. Could you provide a fixed-fee quote and confirm you have no conflict with GACA?"

Tip: the brief is currently a Markdown file. If you'd like a polished PDF or Word version to attach to emails, that can be generated from `lawyer-brief.md` — just ask.
