Our pledge

We want Fly GACA to be a welcoming, respectful, and harassment-free project for everyone, regardless of background, identity, or experience level. Everyone who participates — contributors, maintainers, and users — is expected to help keep it that way.

Our standards

Examples of behaviour that helps the community:

- Being respectful, considerate, and constructive.
- Welcoming newcomers and offering help in good faith.
- Accepting feedback gracefully and giving it kindly.
- Focusing on what is best for the project and its users.

Examples of unacceptable behaviour:

- Personal attacks, insults, or demeaning comments.
- Harassment of any kind, public or private.
- Publishing others' private information without explicit permission.
- Any conduct that would reasonably be considered inappropriate in a professional setting.

Scope

This Code of Conduct applies in all project spaces — the repository, issues, pull requests, and any official communication channels — and whenever someone is representing the project in public.

Enforcement

Instances of unacceptable behaviour may be reported privately to the maintainer at ay2m@hotmail.com. All reports will be reviewed and handled confidentially and fairly. Maintainers may remove, edit, or reject contributions, and may temporarily or permanently ban any participant for behaviour they deem inappropriate, threatening, or harmful.

Attribution

This Code of Conduct is adapted from, and aligned with, the Contributor Covenant, version 2.1. For the full standard text and enforcement-guideline reference, see https://www.contributor-covenant.org/version/2/1/code_of_conduct/.
